Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Address at Meeting of the Phi Beta Kappa Society It was more than two months before any inkling of the great transaction reached President Jefferson and his Secretary of State, Mr. Madison. The news arrived at the very moment when Mr. Jefferson was dispatching for exploration of the upper regions of the Louisiana country, and the Northwest beyond the Rocky mountain divide, two young Virginians whose achievements were destined to have a growing fame and appreciation - Meriwether Lewis and William Clark. Imagine the excitement of these two intrepid and patriotic young explorers when they learned that they were to be pathfinders across our own virgin territory rather than that of European empires! And try to imagine the strength and breadth of mind of men who, under conditions so different from those of our own time, had the largeness of view to think in terms of continents rather than in those of mere provinces. When in the course of protracted negotiations, also at Paris, it was decided five or six years ago to retain the Philippines by cession from Spain, long cabled dispatches were sent every night to the State Department at Washington, after which the President and his advisers held a conference, followed the next morning by minute cabled instructions to the American commissioners at Paris. Mr. Monroe had to act without home advice; and he belonged, moreover, to the party of strict constitutional construction. But he recognized the hand of national destiny, and he had no doubt of Mr. Jefferson's disposition and ability to carry the treaty to its consummation. At the end of this month there opens at St. Louis the...
